Art Unit: 1764

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 48-59 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Smith and Cornwell.

Initially it is noted that paper and paper products (e.g., cardboard) are extremely well known and commonly used as firestarter materials as well as primary fuel for a fire.

Smith, U.S. Patent 2,916,365, is relied on as teaching paper as a firestarter material (column 2, lines 23-30).

Cornwell, U.S. Patent 4,769,044, is relied on as teaching fuel elements of cellulosic material including, inter alia, paper and cardboard (column 1, lines 44-48) and treating said cellulosic material in a hammer mill or similar comminuting device (column 2, lines 3-7).

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to form a firestarter from paper and cardboard, including cardboard which has been treated in a hammer mill, because paper and cardboard are both extremely well known as cheap and easily ignitable sources of fuel.

Applicant is advised that should claims 49 and 52 be found allowable, claims 50 and 53 will be objected to under 37 CFR 1.75 as being a substantial duplicate thereof. When two claims in an application are duplicates or else are so close in content that they both cover the same thing, despite a slight difference in wording, it is proper after allowing one claim to object to the other as being a substantial duplicate of the allowed claim. See MPEP § 706.03(k).

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
